

HOW TO ACCESS YOUR ACT SCORES ONLINE

Now that you have received the scores from the ACT you took here at Reagan in March, you need to connect them to a new or existing online account. This will be the only way for you to register for your next test if you want to take the ACT again, access and view all of your scores online, and prepare to send them electronically to colleges when you apply for admission in the Fall.

Follow the instructions that apply to your situation:

If you have NEVER created an ACT online account and never took the ACT prior to the test in March >

- Go to www.actstudent.org
- Click on "Sign Up" in the Student Web Account box
- Click "Create Account"
- When asked "Have you registered for the ACT before?," click "NO"
- When asked "Have you taken the ACT before?," click "YES"
- Enter the requested information
- Enter your social security number or the ID number found at the top of your paper ACT score report
- A message will indicate that your scores have been found and have been connected to this new online account
- If your scores are NOT found, go through the process again to be sure you have entered everything correctly, as your data must exactly match the data on your score report. If the scores are still not found, call the ACT office for help

If you created an online ACT account and took the ACT on your own before taking it at Reagan OR

If you never took the ACT before taking it at Reagan, but then created a new online account after taking the test in March, without connecting it to your March test >

The only way to "connect" your Reagan scores to your existing account is to call the ACT office and ask them to pull your new scores from the Reagan test date into your existing account. You cannot do this yourself through any online process - you must call. Do NOT create a new separate account!

Tell the representative that you recently took the ACT at your high school through a mandated state testing program, that you had already created an online ACT account before you received this recent score report, and that you want them to pull your March Reagan ACT scores into your online account.
