

Naviance Teacher Enablement Content

Teachers can play a key role in your Naviance deployment and implementation. Check out these resources to help plan out your teacher engagement plan.

Topic	Resource	Description
Introduction to Naviance	Video: The Student Journey in Naviance Student (5:50) Video: Naviance & Naviance Student Overview (14:48) Reference Guide: Student Folder	It is a good idea to make teachers aware of Naviance towards the beginning of your implementation, so you can begin to build awareness and buy-in. At a faculty meeting or via a schoolwide newsletter, try including some information about what Naviance is, how you expect to use it with students, and when teachers can expect their own logins and additional information.
eDocs	Video: Teacher Desk (7:41) Reference Guide: Teacher Desk	eDocs is one of the easiest ways to get teachers involved, as they are already used to supporting students' college applications with letters of recommendation. As you are planning out your eDocs deployment, make sure to have a plan to alert teachers of the new process of receiving and responding to LOR requests in Naviance as well as to provide any necessary training opportunities for them to learn the new tools.
Career Research & Self Discovery	Reference Guide: Self Discovery Tools Reference Guide: Resume Builder Quick Guide: Roadtrip Nation	Tapping into topic areas that teachers are already covering in their classroom can be a great way to develop buy-in. Many teachers already utilize career research/self discovery as part of their curriculum, so utilizing Naviance tools to augment their lessons is a great idea. The Resume Builder in Naviance is an important tool for teachers to be aware of, as they help guide students through how to create and maintain a resume. Roadtrip Nation is an interview archive organized by career, theme, and leader to provide engaging videos for students to watch.
Classroom Activities	Quick Guide: Surveys Help Library Article: Goals Quick Guide: Naviance Curriculum	Utilizing Naviance tools during regular classroom activities can be an easy way to incorporate college, career, and life readiness conversations throughout the school day. Teachers can use Surveys to gather information from students, while Goal Setting is an important tool used across subject areas. If your school subscribes to Naviance Curriculum , these pre-made lessons for students on a variety of topics (Success Skills, Financial Planning, Career Planning, etc.) are easily blended into curriculum units on the same topics.
